

ABSTRACT

A bingo game sheet for playing a game in combination with a baseball game or the like, includes five rows and five columns which intersect to form a five by five matrix having twenty five zones, each of the rows and columns being associated with a particular inning number or one special event designation so that one zone becomes associated with the two inning numbers or with the one inning number and the special event designation, each zone containing indicia which corresponds to a play or event associated with a baseball game. The particular game and an arrangement of the twenty-five zones on the sheet are identified through the control number to find out the winners.